SUB -TITLES: - - - - -

1. From childhood safety is shouted to us, yet there are some who go on forgetting these warnings in the turmoil and swirl of present day life.
2. Here we find one of these ardent readers so often seen on his way to work in the morning. His interest in his paper is carrying him swiftly into danger.
3. "HONK! HONK!"
4. "Thanks, brother, you sure saved my neck that time".
5. The modern industrial plants are well lighted. The thousands of employes laboring amid swiftly moving machinery are given every protection. Safety is the watchword.
6. The careful worker takes no chances and guards against mishap.
7. "Take my advise and use these pinchers on that job and you won't suffer as I did."
8. The old and dangerous way.
9. The new and safe way.
10. Push buttons start the large punch presses. The two push buttons take both hands out of danger.
11. When moving a die -
12. -- grip it firmly at the bottom and avoid this.
13. "Get an ambulance"
14. The workmen in the foundry dress for self-protection. A new man is inspected by the foreman.
15. Here's the reason why.
16. The men who work on the top of the blast furnace travel in pairs. .
17. When this rule is disregarded, carbon monoxide gas suffocation is sometimes the result.
18. The saw is a source of much trouble but can be made safe.
19. Grinding cylinders with a safety attachment.
20. A construction foreman thinking safety for all.
21. The foreman throughout the plant seize every opportunity to spread the gospel of safety.
22. A carelese worker is a danger to those around him.

(Study in Ford Safety - #2)

23. Employment Manager: "You should be fired but I will give you another chance. Go to the Safety Office."
24. "Study this collection of safety lessons."
25. Thus, on his own time the offender studies out his own salvation.
26. The engineers and conductors on the D. T. & I. R. R. check their orders and watches before making a start.
27. When the repair track is occupied the blue sign gives the warning.
28. At all railroad crossings - STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!
29. When a die is to be changed in the steam hammer a safety rod is inserted under the ram and steam is shut off. A shield is placed behind the machine to ward off the flying sparks when in operation.
30. Among the 52,000 employees working in the Ford organization not one fatality was recorded during a period of over 14 months.
31. SAFETY is contagious. If you're a safety work you'll spread it among those about you. If you're not --- get next to SAFETY.

THE END.
